Art Unit: 3747

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. In particular, while the examiner now agrees that it is known in the admitted prior art submitted by the applicant to use a pressure regulator in a banjo bolt, applicant has not adequately described in his specification and drawings the micro-hole that is apparently the crux of his invention. Applicant appears to claim (Claim 8) that the hole is in the valve seat although the claim is ambiguous in that it could be read to mean that the hole is the valve opening itself. Without a drawing and a clearer disclosure it is impossible to apply art against the claims.

The final rejection of 7/05/05 is hereby withdrawn and applicant's amendment after final has been entered.
